Editorial

Transdisciplinary research encompasses all disciplines by crisscrossing their frontiers. Without their rigid structures, the disciplines reinforce one another to create an entirely different experience. The broad scope of it extends to language, art, culture, humanities, philosophy, and science by fusing the essence of each to produce a novel experience. In fact, research is increasingly transdisciplinary, which produces a common platform of inquiry that may allow a coherent framework for knowledge creation. It entails the search for truth using knowledge from various disciplines that seek to accomplish a common goal. Technological advancements play a pivotal role in giving new impetus to research across disciplines as well. Misbah_Niche of Knowledge has upheld the policy for the last 15 years since the inception. This issue brings forth a unique blend of arts and humanities, which undoubtedly will provide a fruitful and rewarding exercise.
